What do you think of the State Highways?

REDDING – The California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) needs your input. The public survey designed to find out the most important issues regarding the condition of state highways is still being conducted. The survey will give Caltrans an idea of what Californians think of the job being done in the area of maintenance and help identify areas for improvement.

The response has been positive however Caltrans officials hope to gather more survey responses which will provide an accurate cross section and representation of the area population. The survey has been going on since November 24, 2004 and will continue until January 5, 2005.

To take the survey, visit the website at <http://www.dot.ca.gov/cgi-bin/roads.cgi>. Locate the red text, "Please take our highway maintenance survey," and click on "In English" or "In Spanish". The poll contains 35 questions that take about 15 minutes to complete.

Participants will be asked to enter their zip codes, which will allow Caltrans to determine maintenance preferences in various parts of California.
